Now that chiropractors are permitted to practice in this state, are they permitted to maintain an office at their home, as doctors and lawyers are now permitted to do under the terms of Andover's zoning law?

The Board of Appeals has been petitioned by Thomas F. Killeen of Salem, N. H., to rule on this question. The chiropractor wishes to live and practice at 371 N. Main St. A hearing will be held Aug. 3 at Memorial Hall Library.

Miss Judith Anderson of 3 Wolcott St., was injured July 23 in a two-car collision at Salisbury Beach. Her car was hit as it stood in a line of traffic. She was released after treatment.

H. Audessee Construction Co., Inc., of Andover, has purchased a 180-acre estate in Plymouth for development into a new residential community with greenbelt areas, ponds and brooks.

Two Opening Travel Center

Two Andover women will open a Colpitts Travel Center on Main Street about Aug. 15 in a portion of the building vacated recently by Michael Jay's dress shop.

Partners in the venture are Mrs. Gerald M. Lewis of Nutmeg Lane and Mrs. Alfred Naman of 13 Marwood Dr. Their business will be a branch of the Boston firm of Colpitts of New England, the largest independent travel agency in New England.

The building they are to occupy is among those to be incorporated in a retail-apartment complex planned by Danton Realty Trust for the area between Hill's Hardware and Merrimack Valley National Bank.

THE HUB FOR EDUCATIONAL ACTIVITY in the proposed Bancroft School will be the library - resource center, viewed here from one of the classroom areas that connect with it from both first and second floor levels. Exposed wooden beams heighten the architectural interest, absorb sound and reduce inside maintenance costs. (Sketch by William D. Warner, architect)

A Castle. A Fort. A Barn?

School Design Breaks With Tradition

(The second in a series of three TOWNSMAN News Features)

Is it a castle?
Is it a cavalry barn?
Is it Fort Apache?

No? It is the design for the Bancroft School which is proving such an inspiration to quipsters.

If the plan, and ultimately the building, prove equally stimulating to the imaginations of elementary age boys and girls, then Architect William D. Warner will have achieved one of his objectives which was to create a design that would "minimize the usual institutional look" of schools and produce a child-oriented environment - "an environment in which children can learn about themselves, the world . . . and the discoveries and histories of all civilizations."

At the heart of the school is the resources center, combining library functions with research and audio-visual facilities. Two-level classroom areas open to this center on three sides. On the fourth side are the administration and special instructional areas, providing connection but separation from the gym and cafeteria on the entrance side of the building.

A covered canopy creates open corridors which are consequently available for instructional use and the hallway to the resource center becomes a display area where such things as a model solar system can be exhibited.

Potentially noisy or messy activities are arranged for in two towers that flank the school at the rear. Here there will be a science room with a green house and an art room with a loft for painting. Architect Warner says that the exterior of the building is deliberately compact to minimize destruction of trees. Areas within the school will all connect internally, but in a way which gives the impression of a "small, tightly knit village of buildings which look somewhat like an abstract castle or a group of farm buildings." Since the school is located in the woods, Warner plans to use nature colors ranging from the earth hue of the masonry block walls and light brown stain of cedar board wall panels to the dark brown of the roof shingles.

Warner talked about his design this week with members of the five municipal boards and committees which are directly involved with the planning and construction of the Bancroft School.

They showed little interest in the educational concepts that inspired the plan, but they indicated

Assessors Awaiting Tax News

The Andover board of assessors is expecting notification today or Friday that the State Tax Commissioner has approved the $25 tax rate they are recommending for 1967.

Not until the rate is official, however, are the assessors permitted to state how much of the predicted rate can be accredited to the cost of school operations or the balance of the municipal budget.

The Andover tax rate for 1966 was $33. It had been predicted that the 1967 rate would go as high as $36 per thousand of assessment, but a healthy increase in assessments offset an increase in the budget. The added assessments are a result of both new construction during the past year and the updating of appraisals on existing property.

Assessor William Russell said Wednesday that if the rate comes through as expected, 1967 tax bills should be in the mail by the second or third week of August.

He added that the last notifications change - or no change - have been sent to taxpayers who questioned assessments recommended for their properties by Whipple, McGane & Darcy as a result of the

Town Explains Murky Water

If you have been complaining that the water these days just doesn't look, smell and taste like Andover water, please be advised that the condition is temporary - but for an indefinite period.

The water department is involved with a systematic program of flushing its transmission lines to clear away the rust, sediment etc. which accumulated during the years of drought when the town could not afford to deplete its water supply by scheduling this routine maintenance procedure.

The flushing has been handled without creating problems in some parts of town, but in others, particularly where the lines are old, the cleaning process has stirred up a bothersome amount of sediment.

Donald C. Bassett, water superintendent, reports that the flushing will be continued, off and on, through the summer to clear all lines.

The trouble with the world, as we have heard it said, is the people in it.

Migrant Championed

Part III

The Commonwealth Service Corps took its gloves off last week and broadened its fight with the farm bloc over the rights of the some 4000 migrant farm workers who are employed in this state each growing season.

Blaming itself for recent defeat of legislation which would have forced reluctant farmers to let migrant employees see visitors, Corpsmen included, the Corps has released notarized affidavits from six area coordinators to document its contention that some Massachusetts farmers are keeping migrants "isolated from the outside world in general and from Service Corps employees in particular." Among farmers listed as uncooperative are four from Andover.

The move was made in an attempt to gain Senate approval for a "visitors" amendment to a state migrant minimum wage measure which passed the House earlier this month without a visitors amendment. One was introduced, but defeated with a standing vote of 88 - 14. Service Corps Director John C. Cort told a press conference last week that his staff did not "take sufficient pains" to get information about its experiences with farmers to members of the House before its vote because the Corps felt the cause was "so clearly right."

Released with the other affidavits was one submitted by Gordon C. Reardon who heads a Corps area office located on the campus of Phillips Academy. Reporting that seven farms within his territory have refused to allow the CSC to communicate with their migrant workers, either on or off the farm, Reardon included the names of four from this community along with comments about each farmer's reaction to the proposal.

that the Corps be permitted to meet with seasonal Puerto Rican farm hands.

The reports on Andover farmers read as follows:

Benjamin Dargoonian, 22 Blanchard St.: "You cannot come on the farm or see the men off the farm because of my dislike of the Commonwealth Service Corps. (Statements made to Maria Reyes of the CSC staff and Reardon during a personal visit to the farm.)

Joseph Vartabedian, 64 Bellevue Rd.: "No one from the Commonwealth Service Corps can see the migrants on or off the farm. (Contacted by Miss Reyes and Reardon.)

Charles Tateosian, 1 Blanchard St.: "My men cannot see you on or off the farm at any time." (Statement made to Miss Reyes.)

A. L. Loosigian, 406 Lowell St.: "No one from the Commonwealth Service Corps may see my men on or off the farm." (Statement reported by Miss Reyes.)

All these farmers, Reardon said, have stuck with their initial decision.

A fifth farmer, Roger Lewis of 28 Laurel Ln., has refused to let the Corps work with migrants on his farm, but he permitted one on-farm meeting and has said that his men may meet with Corpsmen elsewhere during their free time. (Report of a conversation with Reardon and Peter Brown of the CSC staff.)

Director Reardon said this week that Ace Essioan of 82 Bellevue Rd. has just agreed to let the Corps meet with his men after refusing last spring to permit any contact.

Among the farmers refusing all contact with the Service Corps this year are some who did not resist last year.

Now they have joined others in the Farm Bureau Assn. to keep the Corps out because, they say, the CSC wants to substitute its programs for that of other agencies now serving the migrant in Massachusetts, including those of the Puerto Rican Department of Labor, the Migrant Ministry of the Massachusetts Council of Churches and the state Department of Public Health.

The Farm Bureau reports also that it regards Corps teachers as highly motivated but inexperienced. And some individual farmers, here and elsewhere, have complained too about the fact that so many Corps instructors are young women, hinting that it already has or could mean trouble for them, a few have said in the spring that this is the reason they are refusing to cooperate.

So far as the Corps is concerned, the objections of the Farm Bureau Assn. and its members are not valid. Its leadership maintains that Corps programs are being financed as part of the War on Poverty precisely because nothing comparable is now available to migrants, most of whom in the state are Puerto Rican.

These migrants, say the Service Corps, live in geographic and cultural isolation, despite the fact that they are American citizens and residents of Commonwealth communities for several months of the year.

"There is," says the Corps, "the need to bring the migrant into an active role as a citizen... and this can begin by providing him with an awareness of his rights and responsibilities while living in the New England farm community."

The program offered to migrants where farmers are willing dwell on citizenship, health and language education.

The citizenship course is designed to acquaint the migrant worker with the characteristics of the community where he is a temporary resident and to involve him from the beginning in leadership roles with migrant groups as their education proceeds. It also informs the migrant of his rights as an employee i.e., Social Security, Workman's Compensation, the distinction between contract and non-contract jobs etc.

One of the major objectives of the health program is to familiarize migrants with a wide variety of information on health, illness and accident prevention and health services and resources.

The language course is intended to provide the farm worker with progressive ability to understand English as spoken by native North Americans, to carry on work-day day conversations, read with ease and enjoyment and write correctly and creatively.

The Migrant Education Project of the Commonwealth Service Corps is expected to be self-liquidating.

If the Corps is ever successful at interesting both farmers and townspeople in developing a broad-based program of their own for migrant workers, it will have eliminated the need for a state-sponsored project.

IN THE LAST MINUTES of his professional football career, Veteran Quarterback Ed Wilson, joins in a sideline discussion with Gino Cappaletti, Babe Parilli and Tom Yewcic during a training session at Phillips Academy. Less than an hour later, Wilson announced his retirement from football, stating that a serious knee injury received in 1966 has not responded properly to treatment. He was working out with the Patriots on a trial basis, hoping to return to the sport as a reserve quarterback after a year of inactivity. (Cole)

Driver Fined In Lawrence

Roger H. Lewis of 28 Laurel Ln. was fined $25 in Lawrence District Court July 25 after being found guilty of operating to endanger.

Lawrence police told the court that on July 6 Lewis collided with a milk truck which was parked near the intersection of Andover and Beacon Streets in Lawrence. They reported that the Lewis car left skid marks of 75 feet and that Lewis had admitted driving 50 miles an hour at the time of the crash.

At the hearing, Lewis testified that though he might have been doing 50 mph, he had slowed to about 35 mph as he approached the intersection. He said that when the truck pulled in front of him, he first attempted to stop and then decided to go around the vehicle.

Auto Agency Interested In Expansion

Shawsheen Motor Mart is seeking Board of Appeals approval for plans to expand its building on Haverhill Street, opposite Raytheon Co., with the addition of a display room and a canopy over the service area.

The automobile dealer has asked also for permission to erect four signs, one of which would be 35 feet high.

The auto agency's location in the Village pre-dates the town's zoning regulations. It is operating as a non-conforming use in the residential zone.

The petitions are to be heard Aug. 3 in a meeting at Memorial Hall Library. Among six other requests to be considered at the same public session is one from Raymond Fitzmaurice of Wilmington who wants to construct a warehouse on the Wilmington-Andover line at Lowell Junction in a location where he cannot meet all area and parking requirements.

Youth Achieves Eagle Rank

At a special Court of Honor held Sunday at Andover Baptist Church, Wesley Shattuck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Shattuck of 148 Sumner St., was awarded Scouting's highest rank, that of Eagle Scout.

Pinning his badge on at the traditional ceremony was the Scout's mother, Mrs. Shattuck. He received his Eagle certificate from Scoutmaster Harry Bedell of Troop 72 and the charge from Lloyd Buchman, chairman of the Shawsheen district committee.

Also assisting with the ceremony were Raymond Minardi, district commissioner and James Butler, scoutmaster of Troop 76.

Eagle Shattuck is a member of Troop 72, which is sponsored by Free Christian Church, and he is one of the few Eagle Scouts who will represent the North Essex Council at the World Jamboree, Farragut State Park, Idaho, next month. His Eagle Scout achievement represents four years of conscientious effort during which he has mastered the skills of hiking and camping and earned 21 merit badges in the fields of campcraft, outdoor sports, aquatics, personal development, conservation, citizenship, public service, the arts and nature.

About 400,000 men and women throughout the 50 states volunteer as 4-H leaders and serve as project leaders.

considerable interest in the relationship between design and cost. Putting it most directly was James H. Eaton III of the Planning Board who admitted at the outset that he does not like the exterior style of the building. Is this building, asked Eaton of Warner, the cheapest building you can build? Warner answered immediately, "No."

The cheapest building, he went on to say, would have a flat roof, exposed steel beams, identical windows meeting minimum state standards, cheap asphalt tile floors, exterior walls of concrete block painted battleship gray or green.

The heating system would be the cheapest allowed by law and the hardware, cheap as well.

Such a building would be designed, said Warner, without any thought at all about what it was being built for.

And what is it being built for? Introduction of Andover's first non-graded elementary school program.

Asst. Supt. Vaughn Clapp, who has the responsibility for elementary education in Andover, explains that the program will be introduced first at the kindergarten level and grow as the five-year-olds move into the first grade and beyond.

A non-graded program is more accurately defined as a "continual progress program" and all this means is that each child works in each level at the rate of his own ability.

Instead of competing with other youngsters, some of whom may be either brighter or slower than he, the child competes with his own record.

The floor plan of the Bancroft School is laid out to permit the kind of small group and large group instruction that is part and parcel of a non-graded, team teaching program and it is designed also to permit private study and free access to resource facilities, both of which are important aspects of an educational program highly geared to individual needs.

Plans for the school are to be presented to a special Town Meeting on Aug. 28.

or ethical relativism there are no absolute standards of "right or wrong", he sketched four basic propositions which he uses in discussions of specific cases of the new morality in operation:

- "Our business, if we are conscientious, is to love people and use things - not the reverse"
- "Our business is to love people and not principles"
- "We ought to live by the law of love and never by the love of law"
- "We do not have any absolute principles"

Three Begin Choral Tour

Three Andover Students have been selected through competitive audition to tour Europe with the Concordia Youth Chorale. Patricia McDowell, Frank Orlando, and Barry Low will depart from Boston for a three week tour through France, Switzerland, Austria and Germany today.

Highlight of the tour, which is designed to broaden the educational outlook of the approximately one hundred chorus and orchestra members involved, will be participation in the Mozart Festival in Salzburg, Austria.

Miss McDowell has completed her junior year at Andover High School and plans a college music major after graduation. Orlando, an Andover graduate, is attending Salem State College, while Low was graduated from Lowell State College in June and will join the music faculty of the Wilmington schools in September.

Immigrants Are Subject Of Discussion

Rev. Roderigo Vegas will discuss the wave of new immigrants, the Puerto Ricans, at an open meeting of the Community Commission on July 31, 8 p.m., Feabody House, Phillips Academy.

Rev. Vegas is the minister of the Spanish Evangelical Church in Lawrence. His name is often mentioned as one who works with many newly arrived Puerto Ricans searching for employment, homes and food.

The Community Commission is a group of interested citizens seeking ways to be helpful to the Spanish-speaking resident in our community. Their concern goes beyond the conditions and educational programs on the local farms for the migrant worker.

The Commission has located medical services for the workers and presently is trying to determine the number of migrants who remain in the area permanently and may need help. Anyone interested in the program is invited to attend.

JANET L. WORKMAN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Workman, 21 Beech Cir., received her BA in art with distinction and department honors from Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., June 17. She received the Chancellor's Fellowship from the University of California at Los Angeles where she will study for an MFA in design, and then a Ph.D.

First Things First

Officials of all the municipal boards and committees directly involved with the planning, financing and construction of a public school in Andover met as one for the first time in history this week to jointly consider the Bancroft School proposal which is to be presented to the townspeople next month.

And what did they talk about?

The curbings — shouldn't they be granite instead of concrete; the roof — shouldn't it be in one unit and flat rather than multi-leveled and pitched; the parking lot — shouldn't it be square instead of round; the beams — shouldn't they be steel instead of wood . . . etc. etc. etc.

No one, not a single person, asked a question about how the design and construction plans for the building relate to changing concepts in the field of elementary education. And no one showed the least interest in knowing whether or not there are valid reasons for believing that the children and teachers who are to inhabit the building will enjoy it and benefit from working in a kind of school environment that is new to Andover.

We are not suggesting that questions about construction and maintenance costs, safety and the like should not be asked. They are important. We are simply suggesting that officials and voters considering the Bancroft School plan should satisfy themselves first that the building is functional; that it is designed to permit educational progress.

Next comes the question of cost. Will the building be practical? Not, will it be cheap? — for this community is obviously not interested in throwing up the cheapest thing possible — but rather, will Andover be getting a quality school for a reasonable price? It is upon these considerations primarily that Town Meeting must base its decision about the Bancroft School.

"I would suggest that maybe no society deserves to be called 'great.' But that society is better which rewards those who are contributing to the capacities and opportunities of others, and penalizes those who coerce or oppress, or reject their fellow men. That society is worse which rewards restraint and penalizes liberation of human potential." — Kingman Brewster Jr., president, Yale University, at college commencement, New Haven, Conn.

"A man should never be ashamed to own he has been in the wrong, which is but saying, in other words, that he is wiser today than he was yesterday." — Alexander Pope.

Down The Years

75 Years Ago — July, 1892

Dr. Abbott and family of Lawrence are summering at the home of Joshua Chandler in West Parish. The total valuation for the town this year is $97,334.

The Typographical Union of Lowell will picnic at Shawsheen Grove tomorrow. A picnic of colored people was held there yesterday.

E. C. Stockwell, who was shot last week, is resting comfortably and will recover. His assailants have been arrested in Reading, where they reside and are under $1000 bonds. They will be tried today or tomorrow. The party who is suspected of doing the shooting is well to do and liquor is responsible for all the trouble, the idea that robbery was intended having been given up. There will be no trouble convicting the guilty parties.

50 Years Ago — July, 1917

Kenneth C. Foster of Summer Street has volunteered twice, once in the Naval Reserves, and recently in the Aviation Reserves, but was rejected both times on account of defective eyesight. Mr. Foster is at present at the Burgess Aviation School at Marblehead and has made several flights. James Bachellor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bachellor, leaves town tomorrow for Toronto. He has enlisted in the British army and will serve as a truck driver in the quartermaster corps.

For more than 40 years, Patrick J. Daly has been the "man at the guard" at the Ballardvale railroad crossing and in June of this year he completed 51 years of service for the Boston & Maine Railroad.

25 Years Ago — July, 1942

The foresight of the policy of economy followed so rightly at the annual town meeting in March became apparent this morning when Chairman Roy E. Hardy of the Board of Selectmen and assessors announced Andover's 1942 tax rate as the same as last year, $29.

Miss Betty Buchan, assistant editor of the Townsman from 1939 to 1941, now residing in Washington, D. C. has become the first Andover girl to be selected for training in the officers training school of the newly-organized WAAC.

William Renny of Walnut Avenue, former well-known local athlete, is now in training as a glider pilot at a U. S. Army Air Force school in Springfield.

10 Years Ago — July, 1957

Bob Colombosian of Andover, driving a Jomar Mk II, finished fourth in his class in the New England regional championship sports car races July 7 at the new Lime Rock track in Connecticut.

Dr. A. Warren Sandberg, 27 Chestnut St. has been elected a member of the House of Delegates for the 61st annual convention of the American Osteopathic Assn.

Miss Linda Henderson of Haggitt's Pond Road has returned from a vacation spent with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Henderson of Milford, N. H.

Personnel changes in the BPW broke with startling swiftness last weekend. Engineer Ralph Preble Jr. resigned with reasons unannounced and Supt. Edward R. Lawson resigned due to ill health. Assistant town engineer Donald Bassett was appointed head of the water and sewer divisions, one of Preble's duties, and Stanley Chlebowskl, highway foreman, moved up to the post of highway superintendent.

NEW MERRIMACK COLLEGE LIBRARY — Its 20th anniversary will find Merrimack College in North Andover dedicating a new library which will house 250,000 volumes, considerably increasing the present library facilities. The building is the first at Merrimack College to be constructed under the Federal Higher Education Facility Program.

Merrimack Looks Ahead In Its 20th Year

This is Merrimack College's 20th anniversary year, but there are no plans for a celebration extravaganza at Wilson's Corner.

"There is peril as well as prestige in pausing to look back," so far as Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, president, is concerned.

And, furthermore, he takes a modest view of the college's accomplishments. "Merrimack College and its total development simply mirrors the economic and social renaissance that has been taking place in and around the cities of Lawrence, Lowell and Haverhill, of Lawrence, Lowell and Haverhill," he says.

With this comment he refers to the economic rejuvenation that has taken place in the last two generations — a period that has brought the demise of greatness in the world textile industry for the three Merrimack River cities and the development of a sturdy diversified economy to support the one-million people living in northern Essex and Middlesex Counties.

The challenge to stay in the swim created the unforgettable economic pressures of the 1940's. In the midst of this challenge, Merrimack College was founded and located in the historic towns of Andover and North Andover. It was 1947 and the area responded when Richard Cardinal Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, sounded the call for the construction of an institution of higher learning in the Valley.

The decision followed several meetings with a Haverhill labor management committee concerned with the availability of employment and rehabilitation programs for returning World War II veterans. Some of the Merrimack Valley men who worked on this committee were: Andrew J. Germain, Ellery Atwood, J. Leo Cronin, Sidney L. Culloford, Edwin L. Liedick, Francis X. McNamara, Patrick J.

Murnane and Richard L. Walsh.

Father McQuade, professor of sociology and chairman of the veteran's bureau at Villanova University was appointed president in December 1946 and in the summer of 1947 construction of the first building of Merrimack College was begun at the junction of the Andover, North Andover town lines.

On Sept. 29, 1947, the first students began studies at Merrimack and four years later, 112 received the first degrees awarded by the College.

The modest beginning, paced by a prudent and sustained development program, has enabled Merrimack to achieve the aims of its first trustees and founders and at the same time become a moderate sized college of first rank.

The college has had from the beginning widespread moral and financial community support. Officers of large foundation and corporate gift programs today still marvel at the exceptionally high community support of development programs at Merrimack College officials report.

Conducted by the Augustinian Fathers, Merrimack College today is a four-year, undergraduate, Catholic, co-educational college, with courses in three full-time divisions — liberal arts, business administration and engineering. Its evening division offers associate degrees and bachelor degrees in business administration and engineering.

The total number of faculty and administration personnel has risen in the past ten years from 62 to 150 and includes 40 Ph.D.s and 76 with masters degrees. The enrollment has grown from 894 to 2670 (including representatives from 12 foreign countries) and some 1400 persons attend night and summer courses at the college.

The present campus encompasses 13 buildings, four of which have been built since 1957. In its twentieth anniversary year, Merrimack is dedicating still another building, a library, which will house 250,000 volumes, more than double the number in the present library. This facility is among the first buildings of a private college to be constructed under the Federal Higher Education Facilities Program.

In addition, Merrimack is now equipped with a new IBM 1130 Computer. The 1130, an advanced stored-program computing system, is designed for use in engineering, research, management science and business applications through a wide range of system configurations. The evening school has already added a course in computer programming and numerical analysis to its curriculum.

Acknowledging that Merrimack College can provide an impressive record of development, Father McQuade said, "The wide spread reputation of the college points to the needs of the next generation." He said that, "Increasing demands for college entrance forced Merrimack to close its doors to applicants to the next Freshman class two months early." In comparison to the summer of 1947, Merrimack this year received over 3,000 applications and its Freshman class will be limited to 530 students in September.

Recognizing that all who apply for admission to the college are not qualified for higher education, the Merrimack president, in his typical fashion said, "We are now concerned with the continued development of Merrimack to provide educational programs to meet the demands of the 70's."

A Wild Sweet Song

Thoreau's Night-Warbler Identified

by Wayne Hanley

The wild, sweet song of Thoreau's "mysterious night-warbler" awakened me at a recent midnight.

It was a loud, clear song quite unlike any heard in daylight. A Southerner might have mistaken it for the nocturnal music of a mockingbird. Indeed, had it not been for Charlotte Smith of the Massachusetts Audubon Society, the night bird would have been as much a mystery to me as it was to Thoreau throughout his lifetime.

Thoreau almost solved the mystery once. But, he failed to follow through on his May 19, 1858, note in his Journal: "Heard the night-warbler begin his strain just like an ovenbird!"

The night-warbler is the ovenbird. Mrs. Smith called my attention to the late Edward Howe Forbush's comments, which include a colorful description of the song. He wrote:

"One evening as I lingered in the woods until twilight came, I heard in the air a wild outburst of intricate rapturous melody ascending far above the treetops, and saw the little singer rising against the glow of the western sky, pouring out his passion song to the slowly rising moon."

The night singer of my neighborhood sings from the white pine stand near the house. He sings later than twilight, although to the best of my memory, he requires moonlight. The song seldom happens more than once a summer. The fact that the loud, liquid notes awaken me speaks highly of the tone volume. Anyone aware of the volume of the ovenbird's "teacher, Teacher, TEACHER" song—which is among the more familiar woodland songs in New England—will appreciate the ovenbird's loudness.

Singing at night is unusual for a songbird. It is a time for owl calls or night heron squawks. The ovenbird, however, uses darkness to break the monotony of his familiar song pattern.

Forbush notes that: "Thoreau speaks often of this 'mysterious night-warbler' but apparently never identified it. His anxiety to know the source of this night melody was so great that Emerson warned him to cease trying to find out what it was lest he succeed and 'thereafter lose all interest in life.'"

The late Dr. Frank M. Chapman said of the ovenbird's night song: "It is a wild outpouring of jumbled notes over which the bird seems to have no control, and is often concluded with the common 'teacher' song."

The ovenbird is a warbler whose life pattern is so thrush-like that it once was known popularly as the golden-crowned thrush. The birds usually sing from a large branch, less than halfway up a tree. The female devotes most of her time to scurrying about on the forest floor searching for insects. The ovenbird is named for its nest, built on the forest floor, the nest usually has an arched roof over it with a side entrance, much like the old ovens that were in the sides of colonial fireplaces.

Mrs. James Elliott Hosking
(Saunders)

Hosking - Farquhar

Miss Carol Ann Farquhar, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Farquhar, 60 Birch Rd., became the bride of James Elliott Hosking, son of Mrs. Christine and the late John R. Hosking of North Andover Saturday, July 15 at high noon in Grace Episcopal Church, Lawrence.

Rev. Robert Gamble officiated. Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory peau de soie. Sculptured Belgian lace bound the portrait neckline and long sleeves. Her skirt was banded in tiers of Belgian lace and fastened at the waist by a rose and she wore a full length silk illusion veil which was held by a princess crown adorned with seed pearls and crystals. She carried a cascade of white eucharist lilies and ivy.

Miss Gail Sunderland, cousin of the bride and her only attendant, wore a shondu Empire gown of Paris pink. Sculptured Belgian lace trimmed the deep-pink bodice and elbow length sleeves and a floor length train fastened at the waistline of the pale pink chiffon skirt. Her headpiece of pale pink silk illusion was held in place by tiny chiffon flowers centered with baby pearls. She carried a cascade of small variegated pink carnations and ivy.

Edward Naylor from New York was best man and the ushers were Robert B. Farquhar from California, brother of the bride, and John Virr from Connecticut.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Farquhar chose a Mocha imported lace A-line sheath over champagne silk, featuring both Kabuki sleeves and a wide hemline bound with silk. She wore a cymbidium orchid corsage.

The mother of the bridegroom wore pale blue chiffon and a white orchid corsage.

Following a family reception at Sheraton Rolling Green Motor Inn, the couple left for a wedding trip in New York State. They will make their home at 7 Argyle St., Andover.

The bride is a graduate of Tenney High School, Methuen, Lasell Junior College in Newton, Peter Bent Brigham School of Nursing in Boston and Bryant-McIntosh School of Business in Lawrence where she served on the faculty. Presently she is an industrial nurse for Melanite Corp., Lawrence.

Mr. Hosking is a graduate of North Andover High School and is attending Northeastern University. He has had two years service with the U. S. Coast Guard and is presently president of John R. Hosking Inc., Lawrence.

It's Earwig Time Again!

Those obnoxious insects with the pinchers on their tails are back again! These are Mr. and Mrs. Earwig and family that become abundant in flower gardens and even in homes during the summer. Although earwigs are relatively harmless insects their disagreeable appearance frightens many homeowners.

Earwigs are reddish brown insects about three quarters of an inch long. Their distinguishing characteristic is the pair of forceps on the rear of the body. They are nocturnal insects which feed at night on garden plants, molds, and plant debris. They hide during the day in dark moist places. Earwigs often come into homes through cracks around the foundation or are brought inside on cut flowers. Although they do not multiply in the house their presence indoors is very objectionable since they may get into food and spend the daylight hours hiding in furniture, around the kitchen, and even in a damp mop.

Insecticides such as DDT or chlordane give effective results against earwigs when used according to manufacturers directions and precautions. If control outdoors is thorough, particularly around the house foundation, indoor control measures are not usually necessary. Complete information on control and habits of earwigs is available in the bulletin entitled "Earwigs" available free upon request to the County Extension Office, Essex Agricultural & Technical Institute, Hathorne.

Training and experience received in 4-H helps youngsters in future career choice.

Hanscom - Emmons

Arrangements of white Fuji mums, snapdragons and carnations decorated the altar at Christ Church July 15 for the marriage of Barbara Lee Emmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Emmons of North Andover, former residents at 53 School St., and Ralph Gordon Hanscom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Doucette of Melrose.

Rev. J. Edison Pike officiated at the afternoon ceremony.

A reception was held at the Lanam Club following the wedding. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white silk organza over taffeta with a cathedral train and appliques of Alencon lace around the portrait neckline. Her veil of imported illusion was attached to an open crown of bridal stephanotis and she carried an Episcopal prayer book with a cascade bouquet of phaealanopsis orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. W. Jarboe Grove of Andover was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Joseph Boyle of Beverly and Mrs. Joyce Bliss of Andover. Mrs. Thomas A. Emmons, also of Andover, was honorary bridesmaid.

The attendants were dressed identically in gowns of white cotton lace over light blue taffeta. They wore face veils attached to Dior bows and carried cascades of delphinium in two shades of blue mixed with miniature white carnations.

Two Receive Show Awards

Two Andover women were among prizewinners at the recent Lily Show of the New England regional Lily group of the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts.

The design section, "Arts and Crafts", was under the leadership of the Federation, Mrs. Ralph H. Davis, president.

Receiving awards were Mrs. Ralph Hill of the Andover Garden Club who took a second place in the craft-stitchery competition. Awarded a second prize in the craft-stenciling division was Mrs. Robert Lange, also of the Andover club.

Fire Destroys Project Shed

Fire completely destroyed a wood working shed at the construction site of the new senior high school July 22, apparently creating heat enough to break a half dozen panes of glass in the high school itself.

It has been determined since that the fire was probably caused by the careless disposal of smoking materials. Investigators believe that a pile of sawdust in the building was ignited.

A. Collins of Andover were the selling brokers. The property was reported to have sold for the asking price of $115,000.

Raytheon Company has been awarded a $15,836,520 additional increment on a previously awarded contract for development and prototype production of guidance and navigation electronics for the Poseidon missile system by the U. S. Navy's Special Projects Office, Washington, D. C.

Work on the contract will be done at the company's Space and Information systems division.

Bay State Adjustment Co. has acquired the business property at 26 Florence St. and occupied the offices. This recently completed building is the one that stood vacant vandalized over an extended period of time while residents fought the decision of a Town Meeting to clarify the status of the lot involved by placing the whole of it in a commercial zone. Seeking to prevent business use of the property, people in the neighborhood took both the Town of Andover and Arthur A. Collins and other owners to court.

The Supreme Court upheld the zoning decision earlier this year.

The zoning board of appeals has approved the petition of Rita and Katherine Sweeney of 42 High St. requesting a variance to permit construction of an addition to an existing porch leaving less than the required amount of side yard.

The planning board will hold a public hearing at 8:15 p.m. Aug. 14 to discuss its proposal for a zoning amendment which would improve on present restrictions governing construction of loading platforms approximate to railroad spurs in industrial zones.

Pageant Is This Week

The 30th annual Hill Cumorah Pageant, with 450 colorfully-costumed performers depicting the rise and fall of an ancient American civilization, will be held near Palmyra, N. Y., through July 29.

A number of residents from the area will attend the outdoor spectacular which is sponsored by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints. The pageant outlines events in America relating to the history of the Mormon church. Performances of the pageant are free to the public and are held each night at 9:15 p.m.

Hill Cumorah is situated four miles south of Palmyra, N. Y., on Highway 21; two miles north of the Manchester Interchange, New York Thruway Exit 43, and about 25 miles east of Rochester.

SAVING LIVES

The intelligent use of new drugs has assisted in saving countless lives during the past thirty years. Because of the economic status of some sick people, the cost of these drugs has in some cases been burdensome. But, the reduction of prolonged periods of hospitalization, medical care and rehabilitation has often led to a reduction in the total cost of medical care.

The team that has saved these lives and reduced the total cost of medical care is composed of your physician, the registered pharmacist who dispenses his prescription and the manufacturer of ethical pharmaceuticals whose research and marketing know-how have provided the necessary implements.

Three Films On Anti-War Program Here

The provocative film, "The Time of the Locust", winner of prizes for best documentary at several film festivals, in one of three movies to be presented at a repeat showing tonight at 7:45 p.m. in the meeting room at Memorial Hall Library.

This film is a production of the American Friends Service Committee.

Negro Leader Speaks At PA

Melvin King, head of the Urban League in Boston and twice candidate for the Boston school committee, spoke last week before students and faculty of the Phillips Academy summer session.

In King's speech, "Tensions of the City", he discussed how the Negro community feels about urban problems in education, housing, and employment. He stressed that "the Negro, like the labor union member, wants a share of the profits", and pinpointed several specific measures which Negroes could use to involve themselves in the process of solving economic and social problems.

King lives and works in Boston's South End. He is the founder of BRIDGE, an organization which places South End students as day students in private schools, and is also chairman of Low Cost Housing Inc., a newly formed association of five religious denominations which is working on the rehabilitation of housing in the South End.

BUSINESS PROFILES

Occupational Supplies Aid Busy Patients

There is a new Extended Care Facility in Andover. On March 13th of this year, the Hughes House Nursing Home opened in a beautiful brick building on a wooded knoll at 89 Morton Street. Hughes House is a 91 bed Extended Care Facility with no more than two to a room and an average stay under thirty days.

Half of the facility is already filled and at the present time they are in the process of opening the second 45-bed unit handling subacutely ill patients requiring extended hospital care. These patients receive the kind of nursing care and supportive therapy that has enabled Hughes House to maintain this unusually short average stay. When a patient is sufficiently rehabilitated, the Social Service Director makes arrangements for him to go home, secures a home nurse if necessary, and in general creates an atmosphere which enables him to move into a home situation sooner than was previously possible.

Hughes House Nursing Home has a large Dietary Department, under the direction of a competent Dietician and A.D.A. member, who caters to patients' special dietary requirements. They have a complete, modern stainless steel kitchen. All patients eat in the dining room, which gives them a change of scenery and does wonders for their morale.

Hughes House has the very latest in therapy equipment plus a full time Physical Therapist with two Aides and a full time Occupational Therapist with three Aides who work closely together so that the various crafts such as wood-working, ceramics, knitting, etc. and recreational activities can be coordinated for the benefit of the patient. They also have an Activities Director who shows movies and provides billiards, shuffleboard and Beano.

Walter P. Hughes, Owner-Administrator of Hughes House Nursing Home is an Andover resident and has a long background in nursing home and hospital administration. The nursing staff of competent R.N.'s, L.P.N.'s and Aides is headed by Miss Kathleen Mella, R.N., B.S. For further information about this new Extended Care Facility, call 475-8566.

PUBLIC HEARING
PLANNING BOARD

In accordance with Chapter 40A, Section 6 of the General Laws, notice is hereby given that the Planning Board will hold a public hearing, Monday, August 14th, 1967, Town Hall, 2nd floor, for the consideration of the following amendment:

To see if the Town will vote to delete the present Paragraph E, (Removal of Material) from Article VIII, Section VI, in its entirety and substitute the following new Paragraph E, therefore:

SECTION VI. OTHER REQUIREMENTS

E. Removal of Material

1. No person shall remove any soil, loam, sand, or gravel in excess of one cubic yard from any land not in public use, in any part of the Town, without complying with one of the following procedures:

1.1 General Permit
a. For general removal (sand pit) operations, a written permit must be obtained therefore, from the Board of Selectmen after a public hearing, at which time all interested persons shall be given an opportunity to be heard. At least fourteen (14) days notice of the time and place of such hearing shall, at the expense of the applicant for a permit, be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the Town.

b. Before granting any such permit the Board of Selectmen shall give due consideration to the location of the place from which it is proposed to remove soil, loam, sand or gravel, to the general character of the neighborhood surrounding such location and to the effect of the proposed removal on such neighborhood, to the amount of noise, dust and vibration likely to result from the proposed removal, to the extent, depth and contour of the location and surrounding neighborhood from which such removal is proposed, to the general safety of the public on the public ways giving access to and in the immediate vicinity of such location and to the use to which such location has been put prior to the application for a permit. No permit granted by the Board of Selectmen shall be valid for a period in excess of three years from its date of issue.

c. As a part of and set forth in any such permit the Board of Selectmen may impose such reasonable restrictions and conditions on the exercise of the permit as they deem to be in the public interest, including but not limited to the following:

1. the duration of time during which the permit may be exercised;

2. the extent, depth and contour of the area of removal;

3. the grade of the slope of the banks of the area of removal;

4. the proximity of such removal to any public way;

5. the hours of the day during which such removal may be permitted;

6. the hours of the day during which vehicles may be loaded with soil, loam, sand and gravel and during which such loaded vehicles may be permitted to leave such location;

7. the use of covers over the soil, loam, sand or gravel loaded in vehicles for removal from the area;

8. the shoring and reinforcement of the banks of any excavation; and,

9. the placement of top soil and the replanting of the area of removal and screening the same from public view.

1.2 Soil Removal Incidental to Development & Construction

a. Where soil is to be removed in connection with the preparation of a subdivision, soil, loam, sand or gravel may be removed solely from the road areas down to grades indicated on the subdivision plan only after the approval of said plan by the Planning Board and issuance of a "utility inspection card" by the Planning Department.

b. Where soil is to be removed in connection with the preparation of a specific site for building, sand and gravel may be removed only after the issuance of a Building Permit by the Building Inspector. No loam, whatsoever, may be removed from the building site, but must be retained on the premises for regrading subsequent to completion of building. The use of covers on vehicles over the material being removed is mandatory.

1.3 Miscellaneous Removal of Soil (Small Quantities)

Where the removal of quantities of soil in excess of one cubic yard but less than twenty are proposed, the Town Engineer and the Building Inspector may issue a Miscellaneous Soil Removal Permit which shall show the approximate quantity of soil to be removed and the purpose of the removal. No more than a single Miscellaneous Soil Removal Permit may be issued for a single property. The use of covers on trucks over the material being removed is mandatory.

Games Combat Slum Apathy

Last February Joseph E. Barton Sr. of 34 Florence St. took his family and went to visit Joe Barton Jr. in Cartagena, Colombia where the 25-year-old college graduate is working with the U. S. Peace Corps.

He came home feeling lucky to be an American and willing to do something to help his son improve the lot of the people he saw there, particularly the children.

During his early months in Colombia, Joe Barton Jr. used games as a means of establishing communication and building confidence in the poverty neighborhoods where his job takes him.

But he always had to work with makeshift equipment, something he and his father discussed while they visited last winter. Out of those talks has come Operation Handclasp and Joe Barton Sr.'s drive to collect new or well-cared-for sports equipment in time for shipment to Colombia aboard the U.S.S. Glennon which sails next month.

Barton is asking Andover residents and organizations for contributions which may be left at the Elks Home on Park Street between now and Aug. 7.

Donations have already been received from Phillips Academy and the Tye Division of Converse Rubber Co. and the Elks have agreed to handle the packing.

From Colombia this week came word from Corpsman Barton about his plans for equipment collected and the work of his organization.

"Part of the Peace Corps program here in Cartagena, Colombia," he writes "has been the organization of baseball teams from the poor barrios (a barrio is the latin American name for the urban communities that make up their city) to play in a league which approximates the Little League in the United States. At the present time there are twenty teams playing regularly in the league. There is almost no equipment available for these children and they usually improvise their gloves out of canvas and stuffing of cloth. The cost of a real glove is way beyond their means and we have had to borrow gloves for many of the games. All of these children come from the poorest barrios of this city and their parents run the teams and find coaches from the same barrio. Baseball is a very popular sport here but almost no one has equipment and what is available is only used in big games."

"In the face of the misery and poverty that one sees here, it is often difficult to see why there is a need for sports and recreation. Living in conditions that are sub-human, a child gets apathetic and sits around all day without any activity. The children sometimes play at games that bring them into unhealthy conditions. Also parents lose interest in their children and the whole cycle of delinquency begins. Through organized sports the children are active. They learn to participate and compete with other players and learn team play and good sportsmanship. Also the parents take more interest in their well being. These sports programs take place in barrios where the Peace Corps is working in community development. Tomorrow we may be helping the same people to build a school and this initial program will have helped in the overall program of development of the barrio.

"When my father Joseph Barton of Florence Street, Andover, Massachusetts visited here in February of this year, he noticed the shortage of equipment and said that we had several gloves in our basement at home that were never used and that it was a shame that I couldn't have them here. From that we talked about asking people to donate old or unused gloves and then looking for a way to send them down here to Colombia. Recently we found out that the United States Navy is making a trip here in August for maneuvers with the Colombia Navy. One of the ships will be leaving from Newport, R. I. and the Captain of the ship has agreed to carry the equipment."

"The collection of this equipment will benefit about three hundred children directly and other people indirectly. The program is supervised by the Peace Corps volunteers working here in Cartagena so that you can be sure that the equipment will be put to good use. This is your chance to show an underdeveloped country that the people of the United States are interested in helping them."

tax equalization study of the past year.

Some property owners have indicated that they are interested in pursuing the rulings further. Those who plan to ask the Board of Assessors for further consideration should follow this procedure, Russell said:

1. Wait until a tax bill has been received and then

2. File a formal application for abatement with the board of assessors. This may be done any time in advance of Oct. 1, but not until after 1967 tax bills have been issued.

The board will be guided to a great degree by the recommendations of the professional appraisers, Russell said. But, he added, each case will stand on its own merits.
